How it All Started...

Gary Rabine and Sons was established as a sole proprietorship in the early 1960s to provide light grading, excavating, tree removal, and material delivery services for residential customers in Northern Illinois. Gary L. Rabine was the only full-time employee and his workforce consisted of his four daughters, two sons and several part-time employees. His eldest son, Gary T. Rabine, enjoyed grading yards and driveways and realized his passion was paving.

Upon graduating high school, Gary continued working for his father's business, concentrating on paving services, and ultimately entered into a partnership with him. From 1981-1991, paving services grew to represent over 90% of the small company, and by the end of 1993, the business had reached almost $2 million in sales. In 1994, Gary bought his father's share and renamed the company Rabine Paving.

By 2000, Rabine Paving had doubled its geographic service area, tripled gross revenues and grown to 40 people. Business success made possible the acquisition of two hot mix plants. The firm also launched several new locations. Taking these steps resulted in 500+% growth to more than $33 million in total sales and a workforce of more than 250 people.

In 2006, the Rabine Paving continued to thrive despite challenging economic conditions and Gary Rabine launched his national paving company, Rabine Paving America, with great success. Gary Rabine began acquiring and starting other businesses in the construction industry which resulted in the Rabine Group of companies. By 2011, the Rabine Group team had expanded to more than 350 people with annual total revenues topping $160 million.

The Rabine Group has been recognized by Crain's as one of Chicago's Fastest Growing Companies in 2010, 2011, 2012, and 2013, and is one of INC 500's top privately held companies for 2011, 2012 and 2013. In 2012, Gary Rabine was a finalist for the Ernst & Young Entrepreneur of the Year ® Award, and was inducted into the UIC Chicago Area Entrepreneurship Hall of Fame.
